Whereas the SCSU stands and must continue to stand in solidarity with our friends in the Muslim community,

   Be it further resolved that the SCSU provide the same rights and privileges to the OPCCA UTSC that all other clubs and associations have on campus.
Dang mentions that there is a difference between partisan and political, where partisan is overtly partly... Dang notes that political is about causes and movements and social issues. Dang does not thing the motion is right in establishing the political aspects. Dang notes that the motion is not relevant to SCSU because it exists to talk about causes.

Kanwar mentions that it lacks context.

Dang notes that it’s important to remain open for discussion and collaboration and to make informed discussion with political groups on campus.

Lhamo asks what made the group feel like they were not treated fairly. Lhamo notes that the sentiments from the motion are not really about partisan, but rather the union taking on campaigns. Lhamo asks what rights were not given to the group.

Pineda notes that he is not sure what the group is referring to, however, mentions that motions are presented for the committee to review based on bylaws, order, and any not-for-profit acts. Therefore, Pineda believes that the motion is in order and that the membership should be the one to vote on the motion.

Dang asks the committee to refer to the union’s mission statement, which is fighting for students.

Kanwar mentions that the last part of motion suggests that the group does not have rights and is wondering if there’s been a meeting with VP Campus Life or VP Equity.

Brayiannis mentions that folks met with the group to discuss an event that they wanted SCSU to post.

Dang asks for a point of information on whether it is in order to get more context on the outcomes of another union’s stance on anti-free speech policy.

Dang notes that there is no known outcome from the other student union that passed an anti-free speech policy motion. Dang asks the committee if it’s known on what is creating such divisiveness or hostility. Dang notes that SCSU should not be stepping into the business of another students’ union, and therefore should not be breaking relationships.

Motion Moved: Dang Seconded: Juneja

Whereas the mental health crisis in this tertiary education institution has led to many students, some named and some unnamed to take their own lives,

Whereas this status quo represents a tragic status quo that affects all students to varying degrees,

Whereas this institution is often at issue for increasing the intensity and frequency of individual mental health crises,

Whereas this institution is endowed with a fund worth $3.5 billion,

Whereas this institution barely devotes a couple of million of dollars towards Health and Wellness,

Whereas this institution’s shift in responsibility to have Health and Wellness fees funded by the students represents a dereliction of responsibility,

Whereas this institution’s intransigence in its approach towards mental health lacks holism and has directly caused the completely avoidable deaths in this institution,

Whereas this institution’s Health and Wellness Centre has barely enough funds to manage to constant intake of students at the front desk,

Whereas the hours of Health and Wellness remain exclusionary as mental health crises are not scheduled,

Whereas marginalized students often seeking supportive counselling, and other resolutions and resources on campus have found that Health & Wellness does not have few to none of those resources,

Whereas marginalized students then must go downtown and to other mental health facilities to access their right to proper care,
Whereas it is unacceptable that the SCSU, representing 14000 students has created a resource bank, has not held its own Scarborough focused public consultations on the University’s lack of mental health provisions,

Whereas it is similarly unacceptable that, with exception of a couple of 2016-17 representatives, student councillors and student members not chosen by the SCSU to the CSS, have not held consultations with students to a wider degree when those 2016-17 representatives laid out a framework for student consultation,

Whereas there is a lack of a unified best practices policy on mental health as adopted by this institution,

Whereas the university administration has demonstrated a lack of care for mental health, that has precipitated this crisis and not just an isolated incident,

Resolved that, the CSS representatives in the upcoming fiscal year, selected through the SCSU, prioritize applying pressure to the University’s failing mental health approach to find a solution,

Resolved that, the SCSU work with student representatives from students and student groups downtown and at Mississauga to lobby the University to change the CSS structure and imbue the body with much more autonomy and more power to exert the will of the students whom we serve,

Further resolved that, the CSS representatives selected will have a responsibility of holding consistent public consultations that are well-advertised to students through the platform that the SCSU has,

Further resolved that, the power to select CSS representatives shall fall on the board for approval as to further publicize the process,

Further resolved that, as executives who sit on the CSS, they too in the upcoming fiscal year, are bound by the responsibility of take part in the institution-wide coalition of users, providers, and experts who will apply pressure to the University to change its approach to mental health in a manner that is consistent with student non-negotiables set out under the Emergency Response to the Mental Health Crisis at UofT group,

Resolved that, the SCSU Board of Directors has considered the issue of how to approach the mental health crisis at UofT and will faithfully adopt further procedures and services within the union and external of the union, than the ones listed above to ensure that students have their value’s worth of services,
Resolved that, the SCSU unanimously and faithfully endorse and participate in the student non-negotiables that have been laid out by a group that has convened to discuss and find ways to tackle the issue of failing mental health services on our campus and in this institution,
